CANINE DOES DEADLY WORK

Frank Trathin Gives Up Work, Buys
Rifle and Starts Out to Avenge
Death of Animal by Slaughter of Brutes.

Traverse City, Mich.—Frank Trathin of Emerson, which is 45 miles north of Newberry, is mourning the loss of his fine bulldog, and that mourning is none the less sincere because the dog died in the defense of Trathin's life.

Emerson is only a small place, consisting of six or seven houses and a sawmill, and the sawmill is the excuse for the village, as well as for numerous camps in the thick woods. Toward one of these camps Trathin started rather late one afternoon. The bulldog always accompanied him wherever he went, and in this case it was lucky that he did.

Trathin has no love for wolves, but despised them for their cowardice, believing that they would not dare attack a man in the daylight, hence he took no weapon with him. After he had gone some distance on his way, he became aware of the fact that he was being followed by wolves. The bulldog was much affected by this and he would run back, growl and then, with his hair standing on end, would use every means at his command to induce his master to hasten. The conduct of the dog was such, the animal not usually being afraid of anything on four legs, that its fears were communicated to Trathin, and he started to run.

This was the worst thing he could have done, as at once four wolves closed in upon him. He had just time to grab a stout club and back up to a tree when they were upon him. With the assistance of the dog, he managed to beat them off and make them keep their distance until within sight of the camp. Then the animals seemed to perceive that their prey was about to escape them and again they attacked the man, apparently rendered desperate by hunger.

This time the battle was even more strenuous than at first, and the attack was so sudden that Trathin and his dog were caught in a space so that the four animals could attack him on all four sides. For several minutes he fought them off with his stick, the dog fighting valiantly, and finally the bulldog grabbed one of the brutes by the throat. This relieved Trathin and he beat about with the stick to such good effect that the three wolves departed, the bulldog lying down in the snow with its victim, waiting for it to die.

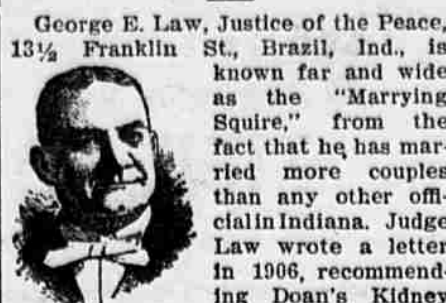

With his face and his hands bleeding and his clothes practically torn to ribbons, Trathin ran into the camp just at dusk and, as soon as he could speak, told the men his story. He was given a rifle and, with several lumberjacks, set out to kill the band.

Arriving at the place where the last battle had occurred, the men saw the four wolves apparently fighting among themselves. Firing into the bunch, two of them were killed and the other two escaped. Lying to one side was all that was left of the bulldog.

When Trathin left the other three wolves had returned to aid their companion, and the bulldog, to save his own life, had been obliged to let go his wolf and fight the others. The other was not hurt to any great extent and joined the other three, the odds of four to one being too much even for a fighting dog. But before the bulldog was wiped out he had given a good account of himself, as the bodies of the two dead wolves showed.

"THE MARRYING SQUIRE."

Justice George E. Law Has Broken All Records.

George E. Law, Justice of the Peace, 13½ Franklin St., Brazil, Ind., is known far and wide as the "Marrying Squire," from the fact that he has married more couples than any other official in Indiana. Judge Law wrote a letter in 1906, recommending Doan's Kidney Pills, which he said had made a bad back well, enabled him to sleep better nights and feel more fit for work. The treatment also cleared up the urine. On January 5, 1909, Judge Law confirmed his previous testimony. "I have recommended this remedy to many people since I first used it," said he.

Cuticura Proved a Great Success.

"Eczema began over the top of my ear. It cracked and then began to spread. I had three different doctors and tried several things, but they did me no good. At last one side of my face and my neck were raw. The water ran out of it so that I had to wear medicated cotton, and it was so inflamed and sore that I had to put a piece of cloth over my pillow to keep the water from it, and it would stain the cloth a sort of yellow. The eczema itched so that it seemed as though I could tear my face all to pieces. Then I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and it was not more than three months before it was all healed up. Miss Ann Pearsons, Northfield, Vt., Dec. 19, 1907."

Ventriloquist's Good Joke.

A small negro boy was going along the street carrying a turtle by the tail, when a ventriloquist standing near seemed to make it say: "Where is you-all goin' with me?" The little negro heard the question, and looked around with astonishment, but not being entirely satisfied as to where the voice came from, walked on. Again the ventriloquist said: "I say, where is you-all takin' me?" This time the boy was satisfied that the turtle had been gifted with a miraculous power of speech, and instantly dropped it on the sidewalk in consternation, exclaiming: "I isn't a-takin' you-all no-whar. I has done dropped you!"

POTASH

requires the best selected seed and the most thorough cultivation; but the real difference between profit and loss on the crop depends on Potash. It makes strong, sturdy stalks and well shaped ears filled out to the very tip, with every kernel sound. Fertilizers high in phosphoric acid, with a little nitrogen, won't do. They need Potash to complete them—15 to 20 lbs. to the hundred. Supplement the manure or clover or fertilizer with 50 lbs. of Muriate of Potash per acre.
